The theme of the short is about the false information that exists on the networks, and that today anyone can publish information and have it reach the media and go viral.

The protagonist of the short is a boy who, upon learning news through application to the point that it reaches the news around the world.

The protagonist, incredulous at this news, changes the channel and all of them are publishing his tweet. After this he decided to go out into the street, but the reporters already gathered at his house looking for more information.