These tables want to demonstrate that the single currency must not be a simple economic instrument but the expression of unity and cohesion between European peoples: The images want to highlight how the Euro strengthens the European Union's ability to be close to its citizens. We therefore wanted to demonstrate, through editorial communication, that it is possible to express the founding values of the European Union.